Quarterly Newsletter, September 2022

Since early 2020, NJ Local Health Departments have been at the forefront of battling the covid pandemic 24 hours a day 365 days a year. It has been a constant battle especially for those department's who constantly do so understaffed and underfunded, yet they always seem to find a way to get the job done. The pandemic has made a lot of existing problems worse. However, the public health workforce crisis has existed long before COVID-19, social distancing, quarantine, and isolation became household terms.

The risk of significant illness, hospitalization, and death from COVID-19 has been drastically reduced as a result of high levels of vaccine- and infection-induced immunity, and the availability of effective treatments and tools for prevention. It is still necessary, however, to protect persons most at risk for severe illness through the use of COVID-19 vaccines, well-fitting masks or respirators, preexposure prophylaxis if indicated, and antivirals. Persons who live in a household or who have contact with others at increased risk of severe illness are recommended to self-test in an effort to detect infection before contact, be up to date on their COVID-19 vaccines, and use a well-fitting mask or respirator.

September Edition

DECARBONIZING NEW JERSEY'S HEALTHCARE SECTOR

SAVE-THE-DATE: THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 2022

TIME: 7-9 PM

By generating 8.5% of our national carbon pollution emissions, the U.S. health care sector excessively contributes to the increasingly severe health impacts of climate change. If the sector was a country, it would rank 13th globally for greenhouse gas emissions. This needs to change.

DURING THE 2-HOUR EVENT, YOU WILL:

- Learn about how hospitals drive down their greenhouse gas emissions
- Hear case studies from NJ health systems - including how systems make decisions about why and how to change
- Learn how health professionals successfully advocate to do more
